

Domain model: We made a mindstorming to see what main focuses the project should has and what should be implemented.

The Player: is what the controller will be attached for the player to use the interface and move around, interacting with the other classes.

The Item: class will be implemented to have a presence in the dungeon and also be usable by the player

The Weapons: is a class that will have a special feature with the player race or class, which would make some depths

The People: are generally friendly NPC to not make the game feel empty with it's class being simple

The Enemies class is important for the main aspect of the game, fighting and will be implemented to have different scenarios
